James Biddle Eustis, appointed Minister to France. is a descendant of an old Creole family. His father was a member of the Louisiana Supreme Court in the days when that court was among the most learned and trustworthy in the Union. His uncle, William Rustis, served as Governor of Massachuseits. He was born about fifty-nine years ago, was educated at Yale College and at German universities and attended Harvard Law School in 1853 and 1854. During the Civil War he was on the staff first of General Magrider and then of General J. E. Johnston. He was for several years a member of the Louisiana Senate, and in 1875 took part in bringing about what was called the Wheeler Compromise. He was elected to the United States Senate, taking his sent on December 10, 1877, for an unexpired term, due to the rejection of Mr. Pinchbeck In 1384 he was again elected to the Senate, his term expiring March 3, 1891. Since that time he has been attending to his large practice as a lawyer in New-Orleans. In manner he is quiet and self-contained, and he is said to be as much at home in the use of the French language as in that of English.

to Denmark to-day, Senator Murphy replied that he did not know Mr. Risley, and had never heard of him. Senator Hill said he knew who Mr. Risley was; he was a relative of Senator Voorhees and, as he (Mr. Hill) believed, was a very good man. Wade Hampton, appointed to be Commissioner of Railroads, was born in Columbia, S. C., March 28, 1818. He is the third of his name, the first Wade Hampton having been an officer under Marion and Sumter in the Revolution, and the second acting inspector general and aid-de-camp to General Jackson at the Battle of Wade Hampton third won distinction during the Civil War as commander of a body of troops known as Hampton's Legion, which was composed of infantry, cavalry and artillery. He was adverse to secession, however, and a vigorous and able opponent of the slave trade. After the battle of Seven Pines, in which fully half his command was killed, he was made a brigadier-general in the Confederate service and was assigned to duty under General J. E. B Stuart. At Gettysburg he received three wounds. He was commissioned a major-general on August 3, 1803, and in August, 1864, took command of Lee's Cavairy with the rank of lieutenant-general. He served also under General Joseph E. Johnston in the effort to withstand the march of Sherman. For some years after the war he was a planter, but in 1876 was efter the war he was a planter, but in 1876 was elected (covernor of South Carolina, his opponent being Daniel E. Chamberlain. In 1878 he lost his leg by an necident, and for a time his life was thought to be in danger. Nevertheless he was elected to the United State's Senate, where he continued to serve until March 3, 1891. After that date he withdrew, his conservatism and adherence to ideas of sound money not being satisfactory to a strong faction in South Carolina.

Edwin R. Allen, of Hopitinton; Secretary of State, Charles P. Bennett, of Providence; Attorney General, Carolina.

James G. Jenkins, whose name has been sent to the Senate by the President for Judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit, was born at Saratoga Springs, January 18, 1834. He studied law in this city. In 1857 he stiled in Milwaukre and was city attorney there from 1863 to 1807. He was nominated for Governor of Wisconsin in 1879, but was defeated. In 1883 President Cleveland appointed him to the place made vacant by the death of Andrew J. Miller, as Judge of the United States District Court.

DISGUSTED OFFICE-SEEKERS.

THE LIST OF NOMINATIONS HAD ALMOST NOTH-ING FOR THE CROWD.

Washington, March 20 (Special).-With anxious countenances but hopeful healts and carer steps, a thousand Democratic patriots who want to serve their country and draw fat e their country and draw fat climbed Capitol Hill this forenoon and speedily filled the public galleries and corridors of the Senate. It was not a jovial crowd by any means; each man seemed to be jealous and distrustful of the man on either side who elbowed and jostled him. All of them were assured by the guardians who had been watching the front does of the White House had been watching the front door of the White House since early brenkfast time that "an immense number of nominations" would be sent to the Senate at noon. Office-seekers who owned watches consulted them con-stantly, and those who had no timepieces of their own watched the big clocks. If Captain Bassett had turned back the hands of the clock which faced the Vice-President to-day he would have been in danger of mob violence.

Assistant Secretary Pruden's arrival from the White gallows when a reprieve is expected; and twice one thousand hungry eyes feasted on the night of the big envelope he bore. Then came the grand rush toward the office of the Secretary of the Senate where, on a table, a duplicate list of the nominations lay exposed names, of which a baker's dozen were for postmaste ships-not only short but utterly barren and unutterably disheartening, so far as the envious men who has been waiting since Thursday-waiting and hoping for good news-were concerned. To say that they were angry and disgusted as well disappointed is to describe their emotions in the feeblest and most inadequate terms. Among them were about farty candidates for auditorships, only one of whom, and he an ex-deputy auditor, was pleased. The other man nominated for an auditorship had not even been heard of as an applicant, and here were thirty-nine disappointed candidates-three of them Kentuckians, each backed by a powerful array Senatorial and Congressional "influence." four additorships remain to be filled. The three inations for freign missions were of men who had not been even "mentioned" in hotel lobbles and other public places where office-seekers most do con-There are only five foreign missions of the class, and three of them have already been filled; but there are many consulships, for each of which there are at least a dozen applicants, on the average, not one of whom has been nominated. It is no wonder that the office-seekers to-night are gloomly asking one another. "Where are we at" of that Democratic Senators and Congressmen are propounding the same question to themselves for very lew of them have yet been able to obtain offices of appointments for their friends.

As for ex-Representatives of the Lild Congress, most of them have altogether abandoned hope. One of them to-day sadly and sententiously observed: "We jurisdiction over members or officers of the Legislado not appear to be in it at all. The President eem to have any use for us." Democratic Senators and Representatives of the LIHA Congress mye begun to scent danger from unexpected quarters. when John J. Rhodes, general manager of the Cont Bureau, brought suit in the District Court for $50, 000 damages against the joint Legislature committees and its officers, alleging that they kept from him his property and ruined his business. It appears that in appointments for local offices in the several States and Congress districts the recommendations of Democrats in the several localities are to have great weight; in fact such recommenda-tions will be regarded as indispensable. A hint of this policy appears to have reached Democrats in various parts of the country, and office-seekers nuturally have not been the last to hear of it. Of course this policy if carried out will materially deher home at No. 378 West Forty-directs. a week ago, having written the following note to explain her absence:
"Dear Robert: I am sorry that I can't step here with you any longer. We can't get along together. We are not meant for each other. I can't please you. I tract from the political importance of Senators and Representatives in their respective States and disricts, but it is strictly in harmony with the reported determination of the President to relieve them so har as practicable from the strain and burdens which the importunities of office-seekers have imposed upon Here brother-in-law was nominated to-day for Minister to Dennark, and nominations were also seat in for a United States District-Attorney and a United States Marshal for the District of Indiana. That State also has secured one of the five first class foreign missions. When the list of to-day's nominations was read by a Western Denocratic Congressman this afternoon he remarked: "Dan Voorhees a sessible his work in early. Bynum and Holman

How he got up in the tree at the rear of Mrs. McCarthy's boarding house nobody in the Ninth Ward pretends to know. He was first seen there Friday evening. Until last night he exhibited his gymnastic acquirements by day and sang to the moon by night. In the moontide glare and by the light of the stars Grimalkin fasted and waxed weak in body yet strong in voice. Bootjacks fell about him as thick as locusts and soap dishes and clothes brushes whizzed around him at the midnight hour. Grimalkin never faltered. Never were such gemnastics seen in the Ninth Ward. WORLD'S FAIR EXPENSES.

Albany, March 20.-Controller Campbell submitted to the Legislature to-night the bills of the World's Fair Commissioners of this State which he has thus far paid. So the public is in a position at last to judge of the merit or demerit of the expenses incurred by the commission in preparing for the exhibit of

New-York State at the great Exposition. Looked at as a whole the lills are not extravaguat, and those which at first might appear large can usually be explained in a satisfactory manner. One or two dis-trict commissioners were somewhat lavish in ordering furniture for their rooms, and some minor officers perhaps ran up too large bills. But in their entirely the Assembly on Wednesday at the latest, and perhaps it may be passed to morrow.

Governor Flower said this afternoon: "New-York must have a grand exhibit, and she will have one if the Legislature makes this appropriation. We must convince the Western people that we are most heartly in favor of the Fair. We have the strongest business reasons, if no other, to sustain the Fair with all our resources. I am convinced from what the World's Fair Commissioners tell me of their plans, and what they have already done, that New-York will have a magnificent exhibit."

The report shows that Chauncey M. Depew and Charles A. Sweet, of Buffelo, two of the World's Fair Commissioners, thus far have charged no expenses against the State, and that the expenses of the other commissioners have been as follows: John Boyd Thacher, of Albany, $208 25; Gorton W. Allen, of Auburn, $206.86; Walter L. Sessions, of Jamestown, $784.61, and Louis M. Howland, of New York, $2,300.

It should be explained that Mr. Sessions is the Auditor diplomacy had secured for New-York by far the largest amount of floor space of all of the States in the Exhibition buildings. Moreover, Mr. Howland had supervised the erection and alteration of the New-York State Building. He had also visited New-York and persuaded Sionne & Co., the carpet men, and other dealers in house furnishing goods, to furnish the New-York State Building. In this way goods to the value of $110,000 had been secured by Mr. Howland for the State Building, and it would present a handsome ap-early as Wednesday of this week make the appropriabe surrendered and the New-York exhibit will be Controller Campbell sent to the Legislature some of his correspondence with the World's Fair Commis-sioners regarding some of the bills audited and passed by them. His chief objections were to paying some of the bills of the District Commissioners. Thus, Mr.

ampbell objected to paying $330 for twenty-two badges for the women managers. On July 20 the Controller received bills from James W. Tappan, of the 1st Judicial District, aggregating $2,076.76. The temized accounts showed that Mr. Tappan had bought in oak desk for $225, a second oak desk for $52, and a third for $60; two rotary chairs for $14, twelve bent-wood chairs for $24, a water-cooler for $10; flags, $37; lettering on glass, $213; other furniture, $512;

and had paid $457 for "advertising." The Controller would not pay this bill, and finally had Mr. Tappan

Mr. Campbell has paid out thus far $108,027 84 of the $300,000 appropriated for the World's Fair Comse0,000. The largest expenses were incurred at to $0,000. The largest expenses were incurred at the dedication of the Now-York State Building at Chicago. The transportation of Troep A to Chicago and back cost $7,000. A "luncheon" cost $1,500, and tovernor Flower said to-day it was "one of the pobrest inneheon's' he ever consumed.

It also cost the State semething to support the Commissioners and the Gevernor and his military staff at Chicago at the same time. But Governor Flower said to-day that he thought the money used in opening the New-York building was well expended. It impressed Western people with the thought that New-York intended to support the Fair in an earnest manner. Moreover, other States expended far larger amounts on that occasion.

A review of the bills paid out of the World's Fair funds disclosed many interesting items. The Senators and Assemblymen examined them with much interest. An attempt will be made to-morrow to pass the World's Fair Appropriation bill in the Assembly.

day that whatever the fate of Sunday closing, the rule at the World's Fair will be late closing. Here tofore the expectation has been that only on gala and special occasions and perhaps two evenings a week would the great expense of keeping open at night be justified. Chief Engineer Shankland this afternoon put the matter in a nutshell. He said:

The electrical exhibit is the finest thing on the grounds. The people will want to see it and they will have a chance. This means that the gates will be kept open until 11 o'clock. Any other ruling would be the utmost folly.

During the Brecklaridge investigation by the Congressional Sub-Committee on Elections the evidence showed that the pistol found under the window through which the bullet that killed Clayton was fired fand been sold by the Simmons Hardware Com-pany, of St. Louis, to a hardware dealer at Butta, from whom it was purchased by a stranger. The authorities assert that they have positive identification of the murderer. Four years ago the Legisla-ture passed an act offering a reward of $5,000 for the capture and conviction of the murderer, and this act has never been repealed.
